Dear Prof Kumar

This is with reference to the Dean's Committee meeting held at 11 am in the morning on February 12th, which led to a position statement the university has issued. You would recall that in that meeting the issue of not allowing/inviting police into the campus was explicitly raised. You too declared that you are against having the police on campus, but that in this case your hands were tied because the police had claimed that the charge relating to the February 9th incident being 'sedition', it had the legal right to conduct investigations freely anywhere, including on campus. We did in good faith accept that explanation, also because at that time hostel searches of individual rooms without a warrant had not begun.

We have now been told by the JNUTA Executive and a large section of teachers that a delegation from among them that met you was:

1. Read out a letter from the police that explicitly asked for permission to enter the campus and conduct investigations.
2. Informed that the university replied to the police giving them the right to enter and conduct operations on campus 'as and when they deem fit', which we are told amounts to giving up the long term immunity from police entry into the campus without invitation that universities have.

If this is true, it amounts to a major change in the policy adopted by successive Vice-Chancellors ever since JNU was established, and against the policy that most universities adopt.

In addition, we have been told that the Registrar told the teachers' delegation that the Committee of Deans endorsed this decision of the University, which is patently wrong.

We would therefore request you to issue a clarification that the details with respect to this matter were not revealed to the Deans Committee, and the statement issued was not an endorsement of police presence and raids but only of the internal inquiry instituted by you as Vice Chancellor.

We also strongly urge you to find ways to immediately retract any blanket permission to the police to enter and conduct operations on campus.

With regards

Yours sincerely
