

AYESHA KIDWAI

Universities have fed India's Tahrir moment

AYESHA KIDWAI

SPECIAL TO THE GLOBE AND MAIL

UPDATED:
JANUARY 8, 2013

About 40 per cent of the more than 17 million students enrolled in the Indian higher education system are women, many of whom are struggling against great odds to pursue academic careers. Even in a society where teaching is considered as a "safe" profession for women, academic ambition beyond the masters degree or a professional education is frowned upon. Nevertheless, for